Ministering

to the Whole Person . . .

CWJC ministers to the whole person. In order to carry out God's command to love Him with our whole hearts, our hearts must indeed be whole.

CWJC minister holistically, engaging the heart, the mind, the soul, and the body on a path to health and wholeness.

Bible Study (Heart)

“I gave my life to Jesus one day in class. These people showed me what love really is and Who God really is. I joined the church last week, and I am going to be baptized soon.”

“I went from being a drug addict to being a CHRISTIAN—wow.”

—CWJC participant—

Mentor Relationships (Soul)

In CWJC each participant is paired with a mentor to accompany the journey to wholeness. These relationships are often reciprocal in nature, as mentors receive a blessing from the experience as well.

Mentor Relationships (Soul)

“What a blessing CWJC is for me! It has given me the opportunity to make an investment in the life of another woman. I am planting seeds of hope that will help her see what is good in her and inspire her to see what she can become. Nothing I have ever done has given me so much satisfaction.”—CWJC Mentor

Job Skill Classes (Mind)

CWJC participants learn how to use computers, how to dress for job interviews, as well as other essentials that enable them to begin a vocation.

Some participants have even gone on to receive an associate's or bachelor's degree from a college or university.

Health and Nutrition Tips (Body)

Because so many of our participants have small children, education about nutrition and health is essential for both parent and child. This enables participants to be as fit as possible to hold jobs which support their families.

Ministering to the Whole Person . . . Works

The Dove Award is the highest honor given to a CWJC graduate. It recognizes the outstanding achievement of a woman who has completed the program and is giving back to the community.

2008 Dove Award Recipient Melanie Fleming

“Being in CWJC was such an amazing opportunity for me. It allowed me to gain confidence in myself, my abilities, my decision making, and to learn to live the way God actually intended me to.”

How You Can Help

Minister to the Whole Person

CWJC Graduation*

“For me, giving back is the essence of CWJC and CMJC. Giving back means that we, as a body of believers, invest in other CWJC and CMJC sites across the country. It means that we teach CWJC and CMJC participants about giving back by modeling it ourselves. And it means, that we, as the body of Christ, support each other.”
